

ABOUT THE FCG TOUR

WHERE THE FUTURE OF GOLF COMPETES

Future Champions Golf didn't start as a big tour, a global company, or a business plan. It started in San Diego in 2004 with a simple idea — help junior golfers get better, learn how to compete, and create opportunities for them to play at the next level.

What began as a local teaching program quickly grew into tournaments. Those tournaments grew into a tour. That tour grew into national championships. Those championships grew into world championships. And today, Future Champions Golf has become one of the largest and most influential junior golf platforms in the world.

But what we have built is not just a tournament tour. We have built a pathway.

MORE THAN TOURNAMENTS — A PATHWAY

Future Champions Golf now hosts over 150 tournaments annually in the United States along with international qualifying events across Asia, Europe, Mexico, Canada, South America and more. Each year, thousands of junior golfers compete on the FCG platform with one goal — to improve, compete, and open doors for their future.

Our platform is designed to help players move through every stage of competitive golf:

- Local and regional tournaments
- National championships
- International competition
- College golf exposure
- Major amateur championships
- Professional golf opportunities
- We believe junior golf should lead somewhere.
- Every tournament should matter.
- Every round should be part of a bigger journey.

That is what Future Champions Golf is built around — opportunity and progression.

A GLOBAL TOUR, BASED IN SAN DIEGO

Future Champions Golf is proudly headquartered in San Diego, California, but our reach is global. Players from more than 40 countries compete in FCG events each year, and our international qualifying system continues to expand around the world.

Our major championships — including the FCG Callaway World Championship, FCG International Junior Golf Championship, and FCG National Championship — bring together some of the strongest junior golf fields anywhere in the world.

At our World Championship alone, over 700 players from 40+ countries compete across 11 championship golf courses in one of the largest multi-course junior tournaments in the world. 30 College Golf Coaches on site recruit at this event. We are not just running tournaments. We are building a global competitive platform for junior golf.

COLLEGE GOLF EXPOSURE & RECRUITING

One of the biggest goals for many junior golfers is to play college golf. Future Champions Golf has built one of the strongest college coach networks in junior golf, with hundreds of college coaches following FCG events, rankings, and player results each year.

We are continuing to innovate in recruiting with the launch of Campus, our college recruiting platform that connects junior golfers and college coaches in a more modern, streamlined way. Player profiles, tournament results, video, academics, and communication tools will all be part of one ecosystem designed to make recruiting easier for players and coaches.

We believe the future of recruiting will be more transparent, more digital, and more connected — and we plan to be at the center of that future.

WHY FCG IS DIFFERENT

FCG has always been built around a few core beliefs:

- Competitive environments help players grow
- Playing multi-day tournaments prepares players for college golf
- International competition makes players better
- Opportunities and exemptions motivate players
- Families and players should feel welcomed and supported
- Golf should be challenging, but also fun and inspiring
- The experience matters just as much as the results

We are large enough to provide incredible opportunities and global events, but still small enough to know our players, families, and coaches personally. That balance has always been a big part of what makes FCG special.

LOOKING FORWARD

Future Champions Golf has grown every year since 2004, but we believe we are just getting started.

The future includes:

- More international qualifiers
- More college recruiting technology through Campus
- Expanded world championships
- Media coverage and live scoring at events
- More exemptions into major amateur and professional tournaments
- Continued growth of the FCG global tournament platform
- Our goal is simple, but big:

To build the best junior golf tour and development platform in the world.

We are building something much bigger than tournaments. We are building a global platform for the next generation of golfers. FCG — Where the Future of Golf Competes.

